UNITED STATES LOCKED IN A TITANIC STRUGGLE WITH DICTATOR HUERTA

On the Outcome of the Diplomatic Contest at Niagara Falls This Week Depends Fate of Mediation.

SEARCHING FOR A MAN TO PLEASE ALL FACTIONS

United States Insists on a Constitutionalist, But Huerta Delegates Object—If Mediation Fails, It Is Said United States Will Probably Occupy Mexico City.

Niagara Falls, Ontario, June 14.—Although there were no conferences with the mediators and American or Mexican delegates, it was apparent things were making for a diplomatic deadlock between the United States and the Huerta government this week.

While mediation has passed safely over many obstacles the factor on which peace most depends, the selection of a mediator, has been unable to all factions, has brought the entire mediation body to a realization that ultimately on this mediation will rest the fate of the country.

Many names have been suggested, but thus far, none has been found suitable. The discussion will continue for several days.

The United States demands that a mediator be a constitutionalist, and only solution, SAYS WASHINGTON.

That American government believes the only solution of the present tangle is to place the executive power in the hands of a broad-minded constitutionalist, rather than to have the inevitable military conquest of Mexico City with the possibility of international complications through injuries to foreigners.

It became known today that the United States informed the mediators at the very outset that it contemplated the selection of a constitutionalist for provisional president.

The American delegates have made it clear the Washington government itself has no preference for persons or parties. The Mexican delegates have argued for a "strong" man, but with any faction, but this the American delegates know will not pacify the American "strong" man who refuse to disband their big army in obedience to an individual not known to them.

The American delegates have suggested names thus far.

WAITING TO HEAR FROM GEN. CARRANZA.

That American delegates are waiting for the Washington government through its close communication with Carranza to facilitate the choice of a provisional president, but the mediators have given the door to them because they have not declared an armistice.

No opportunity has come for the American government to outline its alternative course of action should mediation fail. While the United States might resume its attitude of passive observation, the constitutionalist was pressed, however, intimations have come from well-informed quarters that the American government might be the ultimate outcome.

WASHINGTON STILL HOPEFUL.

Washington, June 14.—Admitting Carranza as provisional president at Niagara Falls is at its most critical stage, having reached the point where the personal and political interests of the United States and the Mexican government are in direct conflict. Success Huerta must be selected, Washington officials tonight nevertheless hope for the ultimate success of mediation.

Administration leaders were appreciative, however, of the importance of the developments of the next few days will have on the situation confronting the nations involved and throughout the day President Wilson and Secretary Bryan were in frequent communication with the American commission.

Justice Lamar and Mr. Lehmann at Niagara.

"This is something to announce," said Mr. Bryan tonight, following interchange with the American commission. "But I am not yet satisfied."

We are not changing our view of the situation."

From the American delegates at Niagara Falls, with the Washington government, was reported that the American government might be a provisional government to be established pending a constitutional election.

Difficult widely on names. Selection of the provisional president.

TRY LYNCH NEGRO WHOM SUSPECTED GIRL

Quick Arrival of Police Saves Black From Death on West North Avenue.

When Arthur Ross, a big burly black, of 318 West North Avenue, arrested late Sunday afternoon near the girl's home at the corner of Street and West North Avenue, a mob of over two hundred white men quickly answered her screams and, catching the black after a chase of several blocks, threatened to lynch him.

The arrival of the police, who took the negro into custody, thwarted the mob's intention.

A large number of negroes aided the mob in the chase, and helped locate the black under a negro house, where he had concealed himself to escape the mob.

Miss Jenkins had just left her home when the negro, in company with another black, abruptly appeared and threatened her.

Miss Jenkins and her husband received a telephone call at police station late Sunday night, stating that a negro in this neighborhood, and to a negro on his motorcycle, the negro owns his life.

dent and his associates was considered at a joint session of the mediators and commissioners of both American republics yesterday. According to reports received here the mediators and commissioners of the United States differed widely on the names proposed.

Today the name of a candidate for the provisional presidency suggested by the Mexicans was reported to have been submitted to President Wilson and Secretary Bryan. His name was not made public. But as could be learned the Washington administration still held to a desire that the provisional president should be a man acceptable to the constitutionality.

While the mediators are struggling with the problem of succession to Huerta, there were additional events of importance to bring influence on the situation.

Reports were received here that the United States administration is making every effort now to save General Huerta's face. They want concessions from the part of the United States to save Huerta from complete humiliation. In order to save Huerta from humiliation, it is argued here, however, the only thing to be done would be to name a provisional president who is in no way allied with the revolutionary movement in Mexico, and constitutionalists repeatedly have asserted that such a man could not bring peace to the republic.

2-CENT RATE IN TEXAS WILL BE EFFECTED

By Decision of U. S. Supreme Court in Shreveport Case—Roads Certain to Have Question Considered.

By John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington, June 14.—(Special.)—The decision of the supreme court, handed down last Monday in the Texas Shreveport rate cases, has been construed here as one of the most important ever rendered by that body since the interstate commerce commission was organized.

Under it the railroads are assured what they have been seeking since the organization and growth of the power of state railway commissions, the creation of a regulatory tribunal instead of forty-nine conflicting bodies.

Two-cent passenger rate laws of all the states are indirectly affected by this decision. The time may come, and that soon, when the Interstate commerce commission may hold that the two-cent rate is for a long time to be entirely within one state, lays a burden upon interstate commerce, and force the roads to desert from this discrimination.

Case of the southern.

Take the southern exclusive between Washington and New Orleans. An interstate passenger pays at least three cents a mile for transportation over this road. Under the state laws of Virginia, North Carolina and Georgia, the road is required to haul passengers on these interstate trains at rates entirely within each state, for 2 cents a mile.

Leaving Atlanta, a passenger could travel to Toledo for 3 cents a mile. If he bought a ticket in Atlanta for Montgomery or New Orleans, he could travel on the same train to West Point and only pay 2 cents.

A passenger leaving Washington for a point in southern Virginia, pays 3 cents a mile. If he crosses the river to Alexandria by boat and buys a ticket there, the road is forced to haul the same passenger at the 2-cent rate.

There is no indication yet that such a move is contemplated, but the question will undoubtedly be raised in time.

The supreme court, in the decision rendered by Associate Justice Hughes says that the federal constitution looks in congress exclusive control over interstate commerce. The object of this was to prevent local communities impeding and harassing the free movement of commerce between the states.

There is nothing new in that. It has been held since the days of John Marshall that the states have no right to tax interstate commerce.

The decision discussing the relative power of state and federal authorities, the freedom of interstate commerce has been looked for in the Minnesota rate case decision.

Here is the difference between the supreme court decision and the Texas case. In the former case the court held that the state statute since the federal authority had not acted. In the Texas case, the interstate commerce commission had taken jurisdiction and ordered the interstate railroads not to discriminate against Shreveport, La., in favor of the local industries and commerce of Texas.

History of Texas case.

The decision by the interstate commerce commission of the Texas case was written by Commissioner Wilson, secretary of the interior in Wilson's cabinet. It held that the state railway commission of Texas, by its regulation of the wide stretches of road in that state, was attempting to build up Texas ports at the expense of Shreveport, just across the line. Rates from Houston and Dallas toward those points in other states, were the same distance from Shreveport into Texas.

Of course, a rate in one direction is not the same as a rate in the other. Reasonableness of a rate for a haul of the same distance in the other direction. It has an influence, but other factors must be taken into consideration.

The court held, however, that here was a case where regulation of rates within the state is a burden upon interstate commerce. The roads were caught in this predicament. To comply with the interstate commerce commission's order, they would have been forced to reduce interstate rates to the level of the rates prescribed by the Texas commission. To protect their revenue and avoid discriminating against interstate commerce, they would have had to ignore the orders of the state commission and raise interstate rates.

Discriminating against interstate commerce. The interstate and intrastate transactions of carriers are so related that the government of one involves the control of the other. It is entitled to prescribe the final and dominant rules, for otherwise Congress would be denied the exercise of its constitutional power to regulate interstate commerce, and the national field would be left to the states.

While these decisions sustaining the federal power relate to measures adopted in the interest of the safety, service and property they illustrate the principle that congress in the exercise of its paramount power may protect the common instrumentalities of interstate commerce, and commerce carried on by means of such instrumentalities from being used in their interstate operation to the injury of interstate commerce.

The principle is applicable here. We find no reason to doubt that congress is entitled to keep the highways of interstate commerce open to interstate traffic upon fair and equal conditions in the rate of a common carrier. A common carrier is unduly favored as against another carrier when the latter is required to carry traffic on its line at a lower rate than the former is required to carry traffic on its line at a higher rate.

It is to be noted as the government has well said in its argument that the power to deal with the relation between the states and the federal government, lies exclusively with congress.

Must Supply Correction.

It is manifest that the state cannot discriminate against interstate commerce by directly interfering with interstate commerce. It simply follows that the federal government has the right to correct such discrimination.

It is for congress to supply the needed remedy, where the state interferes with interstate commerce, and this it may do completely by direct action.

It is also clear that in removing interstate commerce from the control of the state, it is necessary for congress to exercise the control for the effective government of that commerce.

HONOR PAID TO FLAG BY ELKS OF ATLANTA

Governor John M. Slaton Delivers Eloquent Address at Forsyth Theater.

In song and story and with impressive ceremonies the birth of the American flag was celebrated by the Elks of Atlanta at the Forsyth theater last night.

The theater was beautifully decorated in American colors. Special music was furnished by Matthews' orchestra. The public attended the exercises, and participated by singing, "The Star Spangled Banner," "America" and "Auld Lang Syne."

The principal address of the evening was an oration by Governor John M. Slaton. The governor laid particular and eloquent emphasis upon the democracy of the American flag and the ideals it should stand for, and associations it should bear in each man's mind.

"The flag is a symbol of our nation," he declared, "are flags of monarchs, kings and emperors, but the American flag is your flag and my flag. To each man the flag should be a symbol of the unity of the nation and fidelity, and courage, and all things that are dear to a true American."

The history of the American flag, from the days of the first flag with the famous pine tree emblem to the flag of the Mayflower in 1620 to the flag of the thirteen states and finally thirteen stars made by Betsy Ross, Philadelphia, and through all the changes of the national emblem down to the present form was told by R. E. Elquist.

A tribute was paid to the flag by A. P. Andrews. The singing of the national anthem to the oration of Elquist was impressively told in the ceremony of the officers of the organization.

Local attractions were rendered by Frank Wheel, Bobo Hunter and the Steiny Comedy Four.

Crime Wave Usually Follows Heat Wave, Asserts Dr. Proctor

"The Kind of Religion That Can Stand the Heat" was the subject of a sermon to which Rev. H. H. Proctor treated his people at the Methodist Episcopal church, colored, last night in the midst of the hot wave.

There is a close relation, he said, "between the body and the soul, and that affects the body and the soul and vice versa. Heat tends to weaken the body and undermine the will. The crime wave usually follows the heat wave, and the nations of the earth have achieved the most in the temperate zone. And yet the heat is the devil's workshop. It is hot climate, and fought out his great temptation in the vicinity of Jericho, the lowest habitable point on the globe. It is, therefore, clear that while heat affects the character it does not determine it. It is will power that determines character, and religion is the great power that strengthens the will. The kind of religion that can stand the heat is of the common sense type which adapts the body to the temperature. The water liberally inside and out. Take nature's hint, and eat less meat at this season. Stay out of doors a great deal. Keep busy, and keep your mind off that heat. Make up your mind that the heat is your friend, preparing the earth to bring forth food and clothing for man. Cultivate at this season the receptive side of the Christian life, and read the scriptures and pray to a great end. Refuse to give way to anger and do not worry. Exercise self-control, and keep calm."

Wilke Makes Address to Local Socialists

Max Wilke, of August, Ga., state secretary of the socialist party of Georgia, addressed the local socialists Sunday afternoon at the labor temple on Trinity avenue.

Mr. Wilke declared that the present social conditions arose out of the gradual enlightenment of the people in the world. He said that originally capital was taken in war, but man later came to see that by putting his capital to use he could benefit the world. He said that the capitalist class could be had and the capitalist would not end in the pot.

Sketches and Verse by Henry C. Wagstaff.

Every body is a "Go-Fan" now, no matter what the age; the "hearth-fire" stuff is obsolete, for GOING is the rage! No longer the cozy ingle-nook whence none can once look, can hold a charm for an in-door stay, or even get a look! It's the "Tango Tea," or the Opera, the "Cabaret" or show; the Movies with their magic charm, or the White Way garish glow! Nobody stays at home now, the family's on the "hike," for every member young and old, some "joy-trail" must strike!

The flight of the "Go-fans"

Scene A.D. 1904 'No place to go but home!

In the good year 1904, when quilting time came round, desks were "slammed" and the "Paters" all, for home were quickly bound. In the bosom of his family, each contented there to stay, to read the news and air his views on the topics of the day--

Ten years ago automobiles, "tangoing," and the "movies" were hardly known. Now they are the rage. The Atlanta movie managers claim a total admission daily of over 25,000. These shows draw their main attendance afternoons and nights.

Same Scene A.D. 1914 'Nobody Home!!'

Howbeit though, what time has wrought! Look on this picture later taken: the sanctuary of the hearth is nightly now forsaken. They're out and gone; this family, each one a "Go-Fan" gay, with heart aglow for the "Movie" show, or a "prom" on the "great White Way!!"

This family reads the Morning Paper before the distractions of the day dull the appetite for news--

How did you enjoy the "Movies" last night?

The Play's the thing! quoth Hamlet, 'Ho! let the players now begin; and I will search mine Uncle's heart, and ferret out his sin!' 'Sdeath, those were bold words I ween, but Hamlet was 'some sleuth' to 'dope out' such a pantomime to gain a point of truth! And whether you dote on Shakespeare with his thrills of 'trag-e-de', or the 'Follie' Girls in their giddy whirls, and filmy lingerie; there's every sort of show to see, Atlanta's never dull, for she gets the best things going in things theatrical!!!

They're dark! in the morning!!!

The managers of Atlanta's regular theaters estimate a total daily attendance of 5,000 dur-

The CABARET is the fad of the day, with its music song and dancing; to add to the zest of lobster and wine, and make the hour entrancing; and--it's after dark, when out for a lark the "Go-fans" ripe for sport, dive into the cellars of all the Rathskellers, to luncheon and cavort!!

The Rathskellers of Atlanta are popular and up-to-date in every particular, and cer-

Grand-Pas doing the 'Tango'!!

The Tango with its varied steps, invites the light fantastic; although to do the thing plumb through, is more or less gymnastic! But--Grand-Pas doing the "Tango" and Grand-Mas doing it too, nor age nor weight, nor stature caught, with the tango has to do--To catch the glides and dips and slides, and learn each step and rule, the Tango-fans in ecstasy, rush to the dancing school!!

At night of course!!

Grand-Mas doing it too!!

and... here is another Morning Paper moral:

After-Tea-Time
is "Tango-Time"

The "Tango" is as popular in Atlanta, as elsewhere. In every part of the city, at the Hotels; at the Clubs at private residences, a large proportion of the population is dancing, or attending dancing school

The regular "Unionlangers" in Atlanta dance evenings and nights--

Every little movement they rest and read, mornings!

The "curtains of night" are hiding from sight, the "Joy Riders" in their dizzy flight, as o'er the country roads they zip, with the speed of a bullet; nor care a rip, for the high keyed voice of the "con-sti-bule"---except to remark--"the bloomn fool," as catapult like in their mad career, they burn up the wind that fans his ear: Oh! for this sleuth they care not a bit as the echoes e-re-seendo 'I'll git you yit'----

There are thousands of pleasure cars in Atlanta. They are hardly in commission during the morning hours. They are exceedingly busy afternoons and nights.

The Club life of a city: the personnel elect, holds up the mirror of society, its doings to reflect. Criterion of a city's growth and "booster" of its zeal, it gathers to its portals men who guard the public weal! The refuge of the bachelor, the benedict's delight; where sordid cares are flung aside, and worries pul to flight; where "thirsts of evry kind and hue, find blissful liquidations; and minds distraught, and nerves o'erwrought, find ecstatic relaxation!!

There are 19 clubs, all told, in Atlanta, their membership composed of all classes. These clubs are deserted mornings--but they are awfully busy afternoons and evenings!

There's always something doing in the "smart set" colonies, reception, cards or dancing, music or tears. Here the buds of femininity, and matrons fair of face, in rapturous beauty mingle in gowns of shining grace! It's when the lights are brightest these functions hold their sway---not through the drowse of morning, or the waning hours of day!

14

Feeding the "kitty" in the morning? the idea is a jest! her appetite is minus then; at night is full of zest! But whether the game is poker, with stakes well worth the play, or just a social game of bridge to pass the time away; you'll all agree it's after tea, the games are going merrily--at your neighbor's across the way--or at your club, till the dawn is gray!!

---but--at any rate!!!

Card games of every kind are exceedingly popular in Atlanta. They are played afternoons and nights. The most popular game begins at 8 p. m., and finishes only when the last "buck" is dealt.

12

Resume

The census of 1910 gave Atlanta 154,839; 102,861 being white. (The population has increased very much since then.)

IF--25,000 are in attendance at the "movies;" and,

IF--approximately 5,000 are in attendance at the regular theaters; and,

IF--thousands are out in pleasure cars evenings and nights "on the way;" and,

IF--the whole city is crazy about dancing; and,

IF--a fair percentage are playing cards; and,

IF--some of the balance are at the clubs of the city; and,

IF--part of the remainder are attending receptions, teas, etc., and,

IF--the hotels, restaurants, rathskellers, etc., are all comfortably filled--

HOW IS IT POSSIBLE FOR AN AFTERNOON PAPER TO GET THE CAREFUL READING THAT IS GIVEN THE MORNING PAPER?

The very make-up of the afternoon paper--its gross display type and large headings--show the situation. It is made for quick reading, while you are "on the way."

Don't Fail to Read What the Biggest and Best Advertisers in the Country Say About This Little Booklet on the Following Page!

Read What Large Users of Daily Newspaper Space Over the Country Say of "Go-Fans" and of the Value of Morning Newspaper Advertising

H. A. PORTER,

Advertising Manager Pepsin Syrup Co., Monticello, Ill.

"The statistics presented in this little story in verse are mighty interesting, and in several instances especially pertinent. My opinion on the value of the morning newspaper in Atlanta for advertising purposes is perhaps best evidenced by the fact that for a number of years I have been more or less active in connection with the spending of real money for advertising space in its columns, and the result is that I am now a convinced and ardent test of the value of an opinion."

W. F. FAIRBROTHER,

Manager Advertising Dept. Standard Paint Co., New York.

"I consider your booklet one of the cleverest things of its kind which has ever been drawn to my attention."

M. M. GILLMAN,

Gillman's Service-Advertising and Business Building, New York.

"That 'Go-Fans' device certainly shows the needs of doubt as to what the evening papers—poor things—are coming to. You have it in the slickest manifestation of an effort to influence by suggestion that I ever encountered in the press. I like all of these novel and unexpected things. They show that gray matter is in motion—and that always means a step up and on."

FOLEY & CO.,

Proprietary Medicines, Chicago.

"We feel like crowding grateful thanks on you for the little booklet just received, which we have all read with interest and appreciation of its unique character as a convincing logic and its valuable information."

R. S. CHEEK,

Secretary Cheek-Nail Coffee Co., Nashville, Tenn.

"I consider your 'Go-Fans' a fine advertisement for morning papers, and must say it has given me some pointers and arguments in their favor that I have not had before."

J. F. MURRAY,

General Manager Advertisers' Cut Service, New York.

"Your book of sketches is certainly well put together and one which should express our opinion in four words."

H. L. STAPLES,

General Advertising and Outdoor Publicity, Richmond, Va.

"Your 'Go-Fans' is a very cleverly prepared booklet and one which should be of substantial benefit to The Constitution."

ROBT. B. JOHNSTON,

Experienced Advertising Man, and Recently with J. C. McMichael, Atlanta.

"Heart congratulations on your 'Go-Fans' booklet. It is the nitriest thing of its kind I have seen in a good long while. Every page is a 'knock-out' for morning papers in general and 'The Constitution' in particular."

JOSEPH E. BAUER,

Advertising, New York.

"It's a 'brick'—and perhaps better than all superlatives that I might strike into a compliment, is the fact that I'd like to know the address of the author. May I have it?"

R. A. ABBOTT,

Manager Atlanta Branch Ford Motor Co.

"Your book has been thoroughly 'digested.' It is the first real 'live wire' proposition that I have seen from any of our Atlanta newspapers, and I am sure that it will be quite a boost to you."

FRED HOUSER,

Secretary Atlanta Convention Bureau.

"I read your book with a great deal of pleasure and want to congratulate you. It is great."

ILIFF M. SIMPSON,

President Simpson, Shewalter & Barker, Advertising, Pittsburg.

"The presentation in your booklet is a very effective chalk-talk of conditions that may not only apply to Atlanta, but also to a great many other cities and towns throughout the country. The moral of the primer is very effectively and convincingly handled."

"We assure you of the fact that the writer will always have a doubt in his mind in regard to Atlanta being anything but a morning town, and that it will take a great deal of convincing argument to overcome the work that a few minutes' perusal of your book accomplished."

He Is Wondering Why There Are Any

Evening Papers Published At All

HENRY WEBB,

Newspaper and Magazine Advertising, Dayton, Ohio.

"I read your booklet with a great deal of interest, and after reading it I am wondering why there are any evening papers published at all. You certainly give several forceful reasons why the morning field at this psychological time is the 'one best bet' for advertisers, and it will make many advertisers sit up and take notice."

"To be frank with you, I have been a partisan of the evening field, but you have partially won me over to your views."

"These views are expressed in all sincerity."

Morning Papers Gave Twice Returns

Of Those Given By Evening Papers

D. D. LYNCH,

Advertising Manager L. L. May & Co., St. Paul, Minn.,

one of the Largest Seed Houses in the United States.

"Your little brochure is tersely written and artistically sketched. * * * During my thirty-five years' active work as advertising manager for some of the largest houses on the American continent, I have always given the morning daily a preference over the evening paper. There is no question but what the morning daily is the organ of the well-to-do and comfortably fixed buying middle class, while the evening paper is taken by the laboring class, as a general rule. I have tried the morning daily and the evening paper, with the same order to each, checked up the results given, and I have always found that the morning daily gave nearly twice the returns of those given by the evening paper; and, sometimes, more than twice the results."

"As late as this year, in the use of the big dailies all over the United States (The Constitution included) and the Dominion of Canada for May's northern grown seeds, the morning dailies outstripped the evening papers in actual results."

WM. FISHER,

First Vice Pres. C. F. Blanke Tea & Coffee Co., St. Louis, Mo.

"Your book of sketches and poems highly appreciated by the writer; also by our Mr. C. F. Blanke. He expresses his appreciation of the fact that it is the best thing he has ever seen gotten up on such a celebrated matter, which is now being practiced by nearly all the people."

SEIG. MARGON,

Member Advertising Agency of Thos. E. Basham Co., Louisville, Ky.

"I have read with a great deal of interest what you have to say in your 'Illustrated Outburst.' It appears to me you have taken a punch at the evening papers. * * * I want to say it is a great stunt."

L. D. JONES,

Business Manager Florida Citrus Exchange, Tampa, Fla.

"I have received copy of your book of sketches and poems. It is delightful, witty, sarcastic, and, and the truth, and presents an entirely new line of reasoning as to why the morning paper is the superior medium."

W. W. ORR,

Secretary-Treasurer George Mues Clothing Co., Atlanta.

"Your booklet strikes me as being very attractive, and a forcible way of presenting your argument for the morning newspaper."

ST. ELMO MASSENGALE,

President Massengale Advertising Agency, Atlanta.

"Your booklet is thoroughly unique, attractive and up to the minute, and I heartily congratulate you."

G. A. LEWIS,

President the Lewis Agency, Washington, D. C.

"I must say that you have applied a prevalent habit to a very good account in behalf of morning newspaper advertising."

JAMES O'BASHUGHNESSY,

O'Bashughnessy Adv. Co., Chicago.

"Your book of sketches and poems is the first good argument I have seen in favor of the morning paper as against the evening paper in recent times. I congratulate you on producing such an effective piece of advertising."

CHARLES M. STEELE,

Vice Pres. The Carl M. Green Co., Advertising Agents, Detroit.

"Please accept my thanks for the book of sketches and poems. This is a very clever piece of work, and I certainly appreciate having it."

H. W. ANDERSON,

Advertising Manager Maier & Berkley, Atlanta.

"There is a great deal of creative force in your book. In analyzing my own case, I find that I have spent every evening but one during the past week attending theater parties, dances, banquets, etc. It is mighty good dope."

JOSEPH A. SCHLESINGER,

Advertising Manager for Harry L. Schlesinger, Atlanta.

"I certainly wish to compliment you on your 'Wagtail' upon the way your booklet is gotten up and the general tone of it. It is an excellent business viewpoint also."

VICTOR H. YOUNG,

New York, One of the Best Known Men in the Advertising Profession, and One of Its Best Space Buyers.

"I have not had time to read your new booklet very carefully, but from what I have seen of it so far, it seems to be the most unique thing of its kind that I have ever seen. It certainly should prove to be a winner."

H. B. STORM,

Assistant Advertising Manager United Drug Co., Boston.

"Your little booklet is very clever indeed, and I think the argument well taken as to the value of the morning paper."

JOSEPH L. MARENTETTE,

Atlanta Manager Consolidated Film and Supply Company.

"We must admit that after thoroughly digesting the very reasonable arguments set forth in the 'Go-Fans,' we are disposed to change our former opinion and express ourselves as fully convinced as to the logic of your position. And when on top of this we obtain the most unexpected results with the Lucille Love series, there is no further doubt in our mind as to the efficiency of your publication."

B. R. MONTGOMERY,

Montgomery Advertising Co., Jacksonville, Fla.

"Have read your little booklet with a great deal of interest, and although I have been in the newspaper business for twenty years, have not seen any strong arguments like yours presented before in behalf of the morning paper; the busy business man could read it quickly and it still fills him full of thought—the illustrations brought the subject home in a very forcible manner."

T. C. SHEEHAN,

Vice President Durham Duplex Razor Co., Jersey City.

"I read your little book with a great deal of interest. I went from page to page wondering what it was all about. Finally, when I got to the resume, I was satisfied that you had made it a ten-strike."

J. S. OLIVER,

Advertising Manager Evansville Brewing Association.

"You certainly are taking advantage of your very best 'talking point' in the most novel manner. For a long while I have been under the impression that evening publications had the edge on the morning papers when it came to a selection between the two. Your 'Go-Fans' argument puts the matter in an entirely new light to me and your claims are certainly logical enough."

HENRY W. LAIRD,

Practical Newspaper Man, now in Charge of Publicity Department of the Southern States Life Insurance Co.

"The 'Go-Fans' is a great piece of advertising literature. I am charmed with it. As a result of reading its pages I have an entirely new impression of the value of the morning paper. It has been my opinion, and others have held the same, that the afternoon paper is read in the bosom of the family, while the lights are shaded, the father in slippers and the mother plying her needle."

"But there is, as you point out, a new order of things. No longer does the father indulge his comfort-loving ideas and sit around. Instead, as 'Go-Fans' indicate, he squeezes into the pump and the dance shoe, and hies away to the tango and the trot. Or, it is the movie and the vaudeville, the cool park or the auto."

"And I can see how the afternoon paper suffers neglect, and is superseded by the later morning sheet, which the wife and mother gets time to look over after breakfast."

FRANK J. PAHEY,

Treasurer Gillette Safety Razor, Boston, Mass.

"As an exposé of the present attitude of at least two-thirds of the inhabitants of this grand old U. S. A., your advertising booklet is undoubtedly true to life. Also it presents, very neatly, your argument as to the advantage, from an advertising standpoint, of using the morning rather than the evening papers."

C. C. PORTER,

Vice President Taylor-Critchfield Co., Advertising, Chicago.

"I think the subtle idea conveyed in your booklet, that with the people tango mad, the morning paper is the logical one, is certainly very clever."

E. E. BULLIS,

Lord & Thomas, Advertising, Chicago.

"I have read every word of your booklet. It is certainly a novel, and I believe, forcible way of presenting the claims of a morning publication. If I am not greatly mistaken this unique piece of advertising literature will have considerable more effect than the hackneyed presentation of the morning paper against the evening paper."

GEORGE H. ELY,

Treasurer Charles H. Fuller Co., Advertising, Chicago.

"Your booklet just received is very interesting. There is a whole lot of truth in it. Everybody picks it up that comes into my office, and they all think you have hit the nail on the head."

W. J. MORTON, JR.,

A Most Successful New York Advertiser, Who Has Directed the Campaign of Kops Bros. for Nemo Corsets.

"I think your booklet is a little different from anything I have ever seen before, since I was originally created. It certainly will draw attention to the 'Bible of Georgia.'"

CHARLES VAN GUNTEN,

Director of Advertising for Ed. Pinard.

"I consider your book of 'Go-Fans' exceedingly clever. You make a very strong case for the morning paper, and I think your points are well taken."

H. M. KAHLER,

Manager The Proctor & Collier Co., Advertising Agents, New York.

"It is a relief to get something a little out of the deadly routine of soliciting letters which clog the mails every morning, and your pungent verses are a welcome bit of variety."

J. A. DAIR,

Advertising Manager The Mobile Register.

"I thank you very much for sending me the book of sketches and poems, and I assure you that it is not only interesting, but it is intelligently compiled and masterfully beneficial to an advertising solicitor in the morning field, and advertisers likewise, for it illustrated very decidedly the vast difference between the morning and evening mediums to the credit of the former to a marked degree."

G. W. BROOKS,

Southern Advertising Manager Orange-Judd Co.

"I have read with much interest your little booklet dedicated to the 'Go-Fans.' The certainly is something entirely new in the way of ideas, and I believe it presents in a very forcible way the arguments of the morning newspaper. In fact, it has impressed it on my mind more clearly than I ever have been impressed before. I want to congratulate you on same."

H. B. STORM,

Assistant Advertising Manager United Drug Co., Boston.

"Your little booklet is very clever indeed, and I think the argument well taken as to the value of the morning paper."

Thought All Atlantans Joy-Abstaining;

"Go-Fans" Upset All These Traditions

JOSEPH H. PHINNEY,

Director of Advertising for W. B. Corsets, and one of the Best Known Men in the Advertising World.

"A careful perusal of your book of 'pomes' entirely reverses my opinion of the home-staying character of the good Atlantans whom I had heretofore pictured in my mind as a class of quiet, home-loving, joy-abstaining, amusement-decrying and thrifty citizens; but, alas, your little book entirely upsets all these traditions, and it appears therefore that the contrary is the condition. * * * Seriously, I think if the condition is prevalent, your argument in favor of advertising in the morning edition of The Constitution is an uncontrovertible argument in its favor, and I am glad that your subtle persistency, kind personality, and our long-time friendship, was sufficient to induce me to partake of all these good things provided by The Atlanta Constitution and obtain for W. B. Corsets its wonderful influence during the early morning hours in which its readers were endeavoring to recuperate from the previous night's distraction."

H. W. FAIRFAX,

Advertising, New York.

"I thought your booklet so clever and unique that I took it home to show it to several friends. I had a hard time keeping it. Kindly mail me a few copies."

L. D. HICKS,

Advertising Manager The Southern Ruralist, Atlanta.

"Where Are You Going This Evening? is, according to my humble opinion, undoubtedly the cleverest piece of newspaper advertising that has ever been sent out to advertise a newspaper. I have read over the little booklet several times, and each time I have been thankful that it happen to be a farmer, instead of the advertising manager of an evening paper."

S. O. KEALEY,

Treasurer and Business Manager Erie (Pa.) Dispatch.

"The idea is very clever, indeed, and it seems to present the facts just as they are."

LEO. FEIST,

Publisher, New York.

"Very many thanks for the book of sketches and poems. Think it clever from every viewpoint."

F. J. PAXON,

Davison-Paxon-Stokes Co., Atlanta.

"I have been much interested and amused with the originality of the verses as well as the pictures by our good friend, Wagtail."

HAYNES M'ADDEN,

Atlanta, Ga.

"One of the best arguments for the morning paper I ever saw."

DAN HALL,

In Charge of Southern Sales Dept. for American Tobacco Co.

"I have read your booklet very carefully and have thoroughly enjoyed it. It is clever—very clever."

G. H. E. HAWKINS,

Secretary Successful Advertising Manager The N. K. Fairbanks Company.

"Your booklet is very novel and puts forth an old argument in a new way."

E. M. HOOPES,

Special Advertising, Wilmington, Del.

"Your little booklet of sketches and poems is very clever, and the whole is an embodiment of a very wholesome truth. Everyone seems to be on the go nowadays."

M. S. HIGGINS,

Geo. E. Keith Co., Walk-Over Shoes.

"For a purpose we consider your little booklet unusually good."

F. A. HUGHES,

Secretary Lyndon & Hanford Co., Advertising, Rochester, N. Y.

"Your clever little book is certainly a new slant in the morning and evening collection of selections, and not only is original, but mighty good all the way through."

L. B. WHITFIELD,

President and Manager Ala-Ga Syrup, Montgomery, Ala., one of the largest advertisers in the South.

"Your booklet is certainly a nice advertisement for the morning paper. I think you are right, that the morning paper is read more closely than the evening paper, especially since tangoing is here to stay and the cabaret is all the go."

WALTER S. KIDDER,

Vice President Hayner Distilling Co., Dayton, O.

"This is to acknowledge receipt of book of sketches. It is a very cleverly conceived and executed idea, with more truth than poetry embodied in it. * * * It is truly timely and right up to the last tick of the clock."

J. N. KENYON,

Kendon Man'g. Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

"Your book of sketches and poems received and read. My opinion is that it gives a fellow something to think about."

PAUL P. REESE,

Southern Manager The Whitehead & Hoag Co.

"The book of sketches and poems is exceedingly clever and the story is well told. I congratulate you upon getting up such a convincing piece of advertising for The Constitution."

A. B. KEARNEY,

The Hoag-Edits Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn.

"Your little booklet came this morning. It is very cleverly compiled and is a true conception of the 'barbaric state' of present day life."

W. C. JOHNSON,

Sec. and Gen. Man. National Toilet Co., Paris, Tenn.

"We want to congratulate you on the make-up and facts set forth in your little booklet. There is a great deal more truth than poetry in the statements."

R. WINSTON HARVEY,

Advertising Manager Craddock-Terry Co., Lynchburg, Va.

"The booklet is a masterpiece and sets forth, with a great deal of force, the Constitution's ability to reach the good people of Atlanta."

P. E. PAGE,

Talcum Puff Co., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"We have received your book of sketches and poems for which we thank you. It looks good to us."

E. A. WHEATLEY,

Advertising Counsel Chattanooga Medicine Co.

"I think your book of sketches and poems is highly ingenious and very effective."

A. B. SKELDING,

General Manager Tide Water Power Co., Wilmington, N. C.

"Your arguments are not only interesting but convincing, and I feel quite sure that if we were to do any newspaper advertising in Atlanta your paper would get the lion's share."

D. M. HENDERSON,

Nolley Advertising Agency, Baltimore.

"Thank you for your book of sketches—one of the finest pieces of newspaper advertising that has ever come to our desk."

JEAN DEAN BARNES,

Advertising, New York.

"The book that is clever. I have just read it carefully, and while I am a hard working woman, and not a 'go-fan,' I can appreciate their point of view."

JEFFERSON THOMAS,

President Thomas Adv. Service, Jacksonville, Fla.

"Your booklet was duly received and read with considerable interest. I have had some fun with it among my friends who publish evening newspapers. It certainly reflects credit on you."

H. J. PEARCE,

President Brenau College, Gainesville, Ga.

"I congratulate you upon your booklet. It is bright and to the point, and the best presentation of the advantages of the morning newspapers I have seen."

SANDY BEAVER,

President Riverside Military Academy, Gainesville, Ga.

"I must congratulate you upon this booklet and the argument contained therein."

S. GREVE,

Advertising, St. Paul, Minn.

"I certainly want to compliment you very highly on this little bit of advertising matter, as in the mass of stuff which arrives at my desk every day, yours is the only one which I have taken the trouble to read through from beginning to end."

J. B. HAINES,

Advertising, Philadelphia.

"Your booklet is most attractive and artistically—very clever, indeed. You have me wondering if the evening paper has even a look-in."

R. R. SHUMAN,

President Shuman Adv. Co., Chicago.

"You certainly have made a good case in behalf of the morning papers."

A Complete Answer to Claim That

Everybody Is "Evening Stay-at-Homes"

MILT H. SAUL,

Advertising Manager Georgia Railway and Power Co.

"For the past fifteen years I have been in the attitude of watchful waiting for the morning newspaper's answer to the evening newspaper's challenge in regard to home readers. It was, therefore, a great relief to receive recently your booklet describing the afternoon and evening diversions of the American populace, for I consider this a complete answer to the time-worn assertion that everybody stays at home in the afternoon and evening to read the paper."

"I believe the wide circulation of this highly interesting document would overcome the advantage now enjoyed by afternoon papers over their morning contemporaries, with advantage has grown out of nothing more than a

New York, June 14.—Baseball attention last week centered largely on second division teams in the two major leagues.

This particularly was the case in the National league, of which New York

Cincinnati, Pittsburgh and Chicago all played ball at anything but a pennant clip, while St. Louis, Philadelphia and Boston displayed class that won victories. The Cardinals forced their way into the first division by winning five of six games, displacing the Cubs, who only broke even. Philadelphia won

The work of Miller Huggins' men on their present trip has been a revelation to eastern fans. The Cardinals look better than they have since the early days of Roger Bresnahan. The champion Giants barely were able to split the series with them, while the teams was going on the New Yorks and Cincinnati continued their remarkable game of regularly winning on the same day—only losing when the others did. Without a break that really could be called one, this had been kept up from May 25 up to yesterday. The only exceptions came May 31 and June 2.

Neither had gained or lost ground for nearly three weeks until the Reds lost to Philadelphia yesterday while the New Yorks were beating the Cubs.

Teams below the three leaders were in the limelight almost as much in American league play as in the National. The Athletics were only tripped up two times in seven, but the Washingtons had rather a disastrous week of it. They dropped four straights to St. Louis and Chicago, and after taking a brace of games from the White Sox were trounced today by the tail-end Clevelanders. Things are going badly for Griffith's men.

Detroit lost almost as much ground as Washington, although the Tigers should pick up this week, having a series of games with the New Yorks who have been losing with regularity. St. Louis has worked up until it is right at the Tigers' heels. The Browns had to play fast ball, however, to keep matches for the international polo trophy cast a gloom over American followers of the sport today. That radical changes in the defending team were necessary, was the prevailing opinion. Instead of ruling favorites the Americans now are given little more than a long shot chance.
